THE DAILY BULLETIN

Published every afternoon and delivered in this city, the suburbs and Aberdeen by our carriers, at 6 CENTS a week.

It is welcomed in the households of men of both political parties, for the reason that it is more of a newspaper than a political journal.

Its wide circulation therefore makes it a valuable vehicle for business announcements, which we respectfully invite to our columns.

JOB WORK

Of all kinds neatly, promptly and cheaply done at the office of the DAILY BULLETIN.

Hoffenstein's Prize Brogan.

Hoffenstein was busily engaged marking the selling price on some clothing which had just arrived, when suddenly stopping in his work he turned to his clerk and said:

"Herman, I had forgot if ye sell all uf dose plack jean bants vat vas damaged. Vas any more uf dem in de sdore yet?"

"Yes, Misder Hoffenstein. I dink dere vas dree bairs left. I haf been drying to sell dem but de people say dey don't vant to go around de sdreet mit bants on vat makes dem look like a circus procession. Dere vas yellow spots ofer de bants, you know."

"Vell, subboose dey haf got spots on dem, vas you going to let de people dink dey vas damaged? My gr-racious, Herman, de longer you vas in de pisness de more you don't learn noding. Vy, ven a man comes in de sdore und dells me dot does bants vas damaged I tells him he vas misdeaken und I ask him if he know a biece of quadruple vox, finish, needle point, hand dwisted wool from a biece vat vas von piy, cotton stitched und mit a beveled edge."

Ven I ask him dot he don't can say noding. Den I tell him dot de bants vas not damaged und dot dey vas made uf vot vas called in de old world Spanish wool, de best ardicle made dere. In a couple uf minute asder I talk to de gustomer he buys de bants, und I half sell nine bairs in dot vay."

Hoffenstein had scarcely finished speaking when a negro with a bundle in his hand and considerably excited entered the the store.

"Vell, my, frient, vat can I do for you?" said Hoffenstein, advancing toward him and smiling pleasantly.

"You can't do anything fur me," replied the negro, angrily, "but I want yer to gib me back my money what I paid fur des hyar shoes or I's gwine to take de inatter fore de law. I gib four dollars for dem shoes an' I neber wore dem but six days fore de soles drapped off, an' when I zamined dem dar warn't a God's blessed ting dar but paper. I'se bin cheated, and when a man thinks he can come miratin' around me an' I ain't gwine to say nuffin' he's apt to find hisself in de nime hole."

"My frent," said Hoffenstein, quietly, "did you find anyding in de soles uf dem shoes?"

"No, sah," replied the negro.

"Vell, dot vas a biece of hard luck, my frent. De shoes vat you buy ves de Louisiana brize shoe, und ven you dake a bair uf dem you vas liable at any moment to find a twenty dollar gold biece in de soles uf dem. If de soles uf de brize shoes vas made uf hard ledder, dey wouldn't wear out, and de consequence would be you don't can find de twenty dollar biece, and und dot vas de reason de soles vas made of paper so dot dey vill veár ou'd soon, und let de people know if dey git a brize, you know."

"Is dese hyar shoes de reguler prize shoes?" inquired the negro, greatly interested.

"If de shoes is de regular prize shoes, I'll take 'er nudder pair."

"Certainly, my frient. Herman, wrap de shentlement up a bair uf dose Louisiana up brize shoes, and dake dees vat you dink de money vas in."

When the shoes had been paid for and the negro had gone, Hoffenstein said:

"Herman, did you see how I work off does old star brogans?"

"Yes, Misder Hoffenstein."

"Vell, 'ven efer a gustomer comes in de sdore, recollect dot vas de Louisiana brize shoe mit a twenty dollar gold biece in de sole uf dem. I think I vill learn you someding about de business yet."—New Orleans Times.

DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, DEC. 14, 1881.

A JOINT caucus will be held by the Democrats of the Legislature at Frankfort to-night to nominate a candidate for Public Printer.

The Guiteau case now promises sensational features. Before the trial began the prisoner wrote a letter to District Attorney Corkhill, asking for bail. This letter struck Mr. Corkhill as similar in characteristics to the famous Morey letter and he called in several experts who pronounced the two letters written by the same hand. The first three letters of Garfield's signature in the Morey letter are absolutely identical. At the time the Morey letter was written Guiteau had been driven from the Republican headquarters in New York and was still hanging around that city.

THE AMERICAN Register, published at Washington, in an article on the subject of the hollowness of the Republican professions of love for the negro, recalls several instances where good opportunities were afforded to make good these professions, they were snubbed and kicked to the rear as useless baggage. The case of J. H. Rainey, two years ago is cited. Rainey is a colored New England politician who once served as a representative in Congress from South Carolina, when the Democrats controlled the House organization and there was no possibility of giving him an office the empty honor of a caucus nomination for Clerk of the House was conferred upon him. It was nothing more than a piece of hypocritical sham, a keeping of the promise to the ear, while breaking it to the hope and was intended as a bait to catch the negro vote. The colored people who were deceived by the pretense, and were credulous enough to suppose their white Republican friends were in earnest had their eyes opened when Congress assembled recently and the Republican caucus failed to manifest the slightest appreciation of the merits or gratitude for the services of the colored troops. The Register referring to this says: The case of Mr. Rainey, however, is not exceptional. The white Republicans have no love for the negro save as a voter, in which capacity he can be made very useful as a handy little step-ladder upon which the white bosses and ring masters can climb into power. This fact was emphasized at the October election in Ohio, in a very striking manner. Oolonee Bob Harlan, a fine-looking and very intelligent colored man, was placed in nomination for the legislature in Hamilton county, and while everybody else on the ticket was elected by some three thousand majority, Col. Bob Harlan was defeated!

Later, in Mississippi, a similar instance of love for the negro was manifested. At the November election there were six pale faces on the Republican State ticket with Mr. Spellman, a colored man, who was nominated for the position of Secretary of State. Mr. Spellman is an exceedingly intelligent man, and we do not flatter him at all when we say that he is quite the intellectual equal of two-thirds of the men on his ticket; yet when the election came off, while the whole ticket was beaten, as it deserved to be, the majority against Mr. Spellman was greater than that against any other candidate on his ticket! The fact that the colored people of Mississippi, of whom Spellman is much more than a fair representative, cast four-fifths of the votes polled for the Republican ticket, the perfidy of the white Republicans made him the lowest on the list of candidates! These white republicans illustrate the story of the girl who "never could stand the smell of a nigger."

Miss Viola Fleming who has been quite ill with pneumonia is convalescing slowly.

Rev. Thos. Hanford preached two sermons at the Methodist church here on last Sabbath, both of which were well worth listening to, but especially the one delivered in the evening, which was preached from the following text: "And the fellers came up against the trees." The "fellers," he represented as education and enlightenment, that had come up against the "trees" of ignorance, superstition and bigotry, and showed by the history of the world how the "fellers" had felled one "tree" after another, and that the work was still going on. To say that the sermon was very interesting would but feebly express its excellence. P. E. M.

Reward of Industry.
Salt Lake Tribune.

A few days ago a poor friendless lad might have been seen wandering along the streets looking for employment. He presently halted in front of a butcher shop and walked boldly up to the proprietor and asked for a job. There was something in the young man's frank, honest countenance which struck the proprietor favorably.

"Not afraid of hard work?" he asked.

"No," responded the lad with a trembling voice, "I have supported my mother and two sisters for five years by hard work."

He was put on trial at $5 a week mauling leathery beef, and his sturdy frame and health constitution came in good play. One day an old lady came in to get some beef, and the proprietor told him to attend to the customer.

"A tenderloin steak, if you please," said she.

"Here's a cut that nobody but the first families get," responded the boy smilingly as he sliced off four pounds of tough round and cast it with a heavy hand on the scales, jamming it down with a quick, dexterous moment, until the indicator marked six even pounds. Then he snatched it off before the delicate machinery, used to weigh beef, had time to recoil.

"Six pounds and a half, madam," he said, looking her square in the face with his clear, blue, eyes.

The proprietor of the stall called him in that night, and remarking that he had watched his course carefully, added that as a reward for his quick, comprehensive grasp of the business he would raise his salary to $25 a week. This shows the advantage of doing everything well, and when the boy's mother back in New Jersey hears of his success there will be joy in that household. Young men starting in life should learn to adapt themselves to their surroundings and never let an opportunity pass.

Charcoal For Sick Animals.

In nine cases out of ten when an animal is sick the digestion is wrong. Charcoal is the most efficient and rapid corrective. The hired man came in with the intelligence that one of the finest cows was very sick, and a kind neighbor proposed the usual drugs and poisons. The owner being ill and unable to examine the cow concluded that the trouble came from over eating and ordered a teaspoonful of pulverized charcoal to be given in water. It was mixed, placed in a junk bottle, the head turned upward, and the water downward. In five minutes improvement was visible, and in a few hours the animal was in the pasture grazing. Another instance of equal success occurred with a young heifer which had become badly bloated by eating green apples after a hard wind. The bloat was so severe that the sides were as hard as a barrel. The old remedy, saleratus, was tried for correcting the acidity. But the attempt to put it down always raised coughing, and it did little good. Half a teacup of fresh powdered charcoal was given. In six hours all appearance of the bloat was gone, and the heifer was well.

A bill was passed by the Kentucky Legislature yesterday amending the act incorporating the Newport and Covington Bridge Company. The bill gives the right of reconstructing the bridge, which is considered to be in an unsafe condition.
